

Spring & Summer walk. Fatigue level: moderate. Distance: 7.7Km (round trip). Duration: approx 2 hrs.

Fontane to Alpe Soi, Alpe Munda', Alpe Castelletto, Alpe Giavine, Alpe Ca d'Ruez & Valpiana

A circular route combining road walking with woodland paths, around two hours total walking time, following the route of the torrent both ways, with three bridge crossings giving some good views, no particularly steep climbing, and various places to pause en route and take in the scenery. One of our very favourite walks. Rated moderate fatigue mostly because it is nearly 8Km in total.

Follow the path from our apartments in Fontane, down to the road. If you are visiting the Anzasca valley then find your way to Bannio and continue to follow the road up to Fontane and start our walk from the 'Piazza' car park at the bottom of the path.

Follow the road up and keep on it all the way to Alpe Soi - it is a fair distance, though that really depends on what you're used to walking. I once thought it was a trek, now it seems a very comfortable walk. It's mostly uphill but gentle and allows you to relax and take in the scenery. Listen for the occasional vehicle, especially in July/August, but it's not a fast road!
